Chinese Language Study

Many students decide to study Chinese language at NTU because of our reputation for effective learning and our considerable expertise in offering well-tailored, interactive, empowering classes to diverse students for many years.

NTU now offers enrolled international students Chinese courses with credits.

To different types of international students, NTU offers Chinese courses that meet their needs. These include the General Chinese Course and the Applied Chinese Course. (NTU students only)

Non-NTU students please refer to Non-NTU Student.

Language Requirement

Most of courses offered at National Taiwan University are given in Chinese. Though we do not set minimum language requirement for exchange students, they are expected to have certain fluency in English (TOEFL iBT 79, or equivalent IELTS score, or higher is desirable). Also, it is preferable to acquire a basic knowledge of Chinese in order to make life in Taiwan smoother and easier.

Registration

Courses usually start and end within one semester from August to January or from February to July. Exchange students can take courses which start and end within the period of their stay in National Taiwan University.

Each semester, undergraduate program exchange students are required to register AT LEAST 15 credits of lectures, and Graduate program exchange students are required to register AT LEAST 1 class.

Undergraduate program exchange students can take UP TO 25 credits of lectures (Each lecture are usually three-credit) in a semester. Graduate program exchange students can take UP TO 20 credits of lectures (Each lecture are usually one-credit) in a semester. Regardless of the student is undergraduate student or graduate student, those who would like to take other than the classroom lecture (e.g. seminar, experimental work) must request for permission in advance.
